POTENT MENACES
Mr. Pierce considered that half the other barons were potent menaces to the northern farmer, and the amount of votes they cast was acute and important that any adjustments effected should not be confined to the drov area, and therefore urged that the resolution should be adopted.

Another change in the original formula was suggested, to be held when H. Duffy, of Vilna, disapproved of the last urging in the general assembly the burden of debt and recommended instead that the provincial assembly take place.

THE CONVENTION endorsed this proposal, but several members insisted that the motion must be prompt and thoroughgoing if Alberta is ever to break loose from the depression. The motion in its amended form was carried by an overwhelming majority.

ARMED MOBILE GUARDS ARE STATIONED AROUND GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS AFTER EXPOSURE OF HOODED GROUPS MACHINATIONS

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Rains in Alberta and Manitoba have created such a shortage of fodder on the prairies that officers of the minimum livestock allowed relief families will have to be put on strict rationing during the winter, agriculture minister J. G. Gardiner said today.

While 70,000 tons of hay and straw would be the normal requirement for relief families, the government had arranged to ship 60,000 tons into the distressed areas from the prairies of Alberta and the western states, that being all obtainable, he said.

REPORTS JUST RECEIVED indicate that the situation of "terrible gravity" disclosed by the government's investigation of secret revolutionary societies.

GRITS SILENT ON INFORMATION UNITY COUNCIL

Liberal Executive Has Reached No Decision On Offer Of Unity

The Liberal executive had reached no decision on the offer of the People's League, Conservative party and U.F.A. to join a central executive uniting all political groups opposing Social Credit, at the end of the Saturday morning conference in the Palliser hotel at Calgary, the Bulletin learned.

Letter of the People's League urging the Liberals to join the council was read to the executive. It was explained, and a statement by R. L. Gray, M.L.A. for Edmonton and leader of the Liberal party, stated that the council was not to be formed.

GRAND DELIBERATION
The offer of the People's League, Conservatives and U.F.A. raised questions that touched the very roots of Liberal policy, said Mr. Gray, as he urged the executive to consider the proposal with grave deliberation before passing judgment upon it.

or, Leader Starts Fight Against Planned Treaty

PROPOSED U.S. ACCORD HIT BY BENNETT

Canadians Are Exhorted to Hang On To British Preference

HALFAN, Nov. 20.—Conservative Leader R. B. Bennett in a public address here last night urged Canadians to "bring all the pressure in your power" to prevent the signing of the proposed Anglo-American trade treaty, now under discussion.

"The (preference) cannot be lost unless the prime minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) agrees," Mr. Bennett said. "As Canadian electors you give your vote to wipe out that agreement with Britain. And do it, will you."

NOY TOO LATE
"It is not too late. You still have a chance to bring all the pressure in your power to prevent this act."

"I see tariffs piling up against this country and the tariff is out from the great markets of the United States. Follow Canada, must you realize and see that this isn't done. Preserve the sovereignty of our country's business."

"(The loss of the preference) can be unless your government will agree to bury the agreement. (With Britain) since when to reject members of one's own family for a stranger," the Conservative leader said.

CHANCE FOR U.S.
Loss of the British preference, he stated, would be a disaster for exporters "the market Canada now has and we lose that which we had."

Dwelling on trade and on Canada's constitution, Mr. Bennett voiced criticism of the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations and the record of the present government.

EVEN FIELD GUNS HIDDEN IN PARIS CACHE

The disclosure last September of "Les Canonniers" put the government's secret policy on the trail of a partial operation.

The raid of the last few days netted five "mail" caches of arms and the government believed one section of the revolutionary committee had been smashed.

Policemen found not only arms, but also caches of money, and secret weapons and parts of machines.

It has been an open secret in the chamber of deputies, and a revolution, known as the Comité de la Révolution Nationale had been formed, with members chosen carefully from all parties or from outside the parties.

Extremes Rightists have reported the organization was operating secretly on a nationwide basis and on a military plan.

Arthur Remyette, Communist, in the chamber of deputies, was arrested, and the Communist Party was dissolved. André Tardieu had not been arrested in connection with the conspiracy.

Remyette demanded legislation against "reaction" and protested discovery of illegal munitions, explosives and "veritable torture chambers" was received "with levity."

GIRL, 19, HOLDS UP TAXI-MAN WITH BOTTLE

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—A 19-year-old girl, Reina Belanger, Ottawa, was in custody today, accused of holding up Rita LeBlond, Ottawa taxi-driver, with a perfume bottle.

The girl told police she wanted to go to Montreal to see George Ringuet, arrested there for a drug store holding, last Saturday, she called a taxi and on the Montreal road it pulled the perfume bottle out of my purse and put it against the back of his (the driver's) neck. I told him to drive back to Montreal and he would blow his head off, police said she told them.

PRIMO CARNERA TO COURT MAID
PARIS, Nov. 20.—Primo Carnera, whose fighting comeback effort proved disastrous, has decided to turn his attention to courting. The former world heavyweight boxing champion said he was going to New York to visit a French friend, Mlle. Laiter, who said they would "very likely" be married early next year.

A Japanese communique reported Japan's southern forces 15 miles north of Kiating in pursuit of Chinese troops fleeing westward toward Nanking along China's ancient grand canal.

The retreating forces started precipitously hugging the line of 30,000 Chinese in two of China's wealthiest provinces, Kiangsu and Chekiang, and possibly the ultimate destiny of the entire nation.

Alberta Bills Before Supreme Court January 10

HEARING NOT TO BE LONG DRAWN OUT

Chief Justice Hints That Proceedings Will Be Brief As Possible

BANKS INTERESTED
Canadian banks are interested in the bills designed to increase bank taxation and license credit institutions. Counsel told the chief justice two days ago should be sufficient to complete argument on the first reference.

Alberta will be heard in support of the constitutionality of the legislation but there was no definite indication of other provinces would be heard for or against. Agent for British Columbia said he was not instructed as to argument on the bills. Last week he said British Columbia would present argument on the disallowance reference. Ontario was again represented but only for observation.

LEADING COUNSEL
Leading counsel in the argument on the three bills will be as follows: for the Dominion government, Aime Geoffrin, K.C., Montreal; for the Alberta government, O. M. Biggar, Ottawa; for the banks, W. N. Tilley, K.C., Toronto; for the newspapers, Alberta dailies and weeklies, Col. H. J. L. Baiton, K.C., Montreal; and for the Canadian dailies and weeklies, A. J. Thomson, K.C., Toronto, with whom is associated H. P. Buchanan, K.C., Sydney, N.S. Mr. Geoffrin and Mr. Biggar will represent the same clients in the argument on disallowance and reservation. Separate arguments will be presented on each of the bills, with separate facts which must be filed Jan. 4. Facts on disallowance are to be filed Jan. 3. It was agreed notification would be sent to the attorney-general of all the provinces and to the counsel representing the newspapers and banks.

MAYNARD IN EAST
Hon. Lucien Maynard, Alberta minister of municipal affairs, and J. P. Pawley, of the attorney general's department, who came east this week to observe the proceedings, attended the conference as observers. Also present in addition to Mr. Geoffrin and Mr. Biggar were George A. Macdonnell, Ottawa, representing Mr. Tilley, C. P. Plaxton, representing the minister of justice; P. D. Kearney, Montreal, representing Col. Baiton; Culbert Scott, Ottawa, representing British Columbia, and H. Aldous Ayton, Ottawa, representing Ontario. Col. R. P. Parkinson, president of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association, watched the proceedings.

LATER AMENDED
The reference on disallowance and reservation was made by the Dominion government at the request of the Alberta government after the Dominion had exercised the power in August, disallowing three statutes enacted by Alberta. It was amended later to include the question on the Lieutenant Governor's power of reservation. The three bills in question were passed by the legislature at the special session which prorogued last Oct. 3. Lieutenant-Governor Bowen did not give royal assent but reserved the bills for the pleasure of the Governor General. Unless they are given assent within one year from Oct. 3 they become obsolete.

Began in the 12th century, Notre Dame Cathedral, in Paris, never has been completed.

Cupid Shouts

The numerologist suggested a change of name and told Joy Hodges that 1937 would be her biggest year. And it looks as though the year might be right. For the gorgeous beauty not only is starting in a new movie but is the toast of Broadway in "I'd Rather Be Right." Then cupid overtook her by long distance phone and she promised to marry Robert Wilson, screen actor, on Christmas day.

Reduced Rentals On Stock-Grading Lands Extended
The period of reduction in rentals for certain lands in south-eastern Alberta set aside for the purpose of stock-grazing, began in the spring of 1933 to continue until December 31, 1937, has been extended to December 31, 1939, it was announced today by Hon. N. E. Turner, minister of lands and mines.

While there has been some improvement of late in stock-grazing conditions, Mr. Turner stated, it is apparent from investigations made that lands in the drought area are still unable to satisfactorily maintain the amount of stock per acre required by the regulations. The original rental rate, inclusive of taxation, was 4 cents per acre or $4.00 per quarter section. With this rate still continuing in more favorable localities, the less favorable ones will continue to be subject to the reduced rate of $3.20, $4.20 or $2.20 per quarter section according to location.

Calgary, Lethbridge Are Represented in Canadian Academy

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—The Royal Canadian Academy of Arts opened its 5th exhibition last night with 280 works which critics agreed set a high level of artistry.

The pieces ranged from oils, water colors and pen and ink drawings, etchings, designs and drawings, to sculpture and architecture. The first three dominate the exhibition. Portraiture, as usual, has strong representation. Sir Willy Grier, R.C.A., of Toronto, sends three. Handled in direct, confident style is one of John A. Pearson, R.C.A., Toronto architect, in an academic gown and holding a blueprint.

CODY PORTRAIT
Another Toronto painter, Kenneth Forbes, R.C.A., is represented by an official portrait of President H. J. Cuddy of the University of Toronto. Beside the Cody portrait hangs a second Forbes work—a comely maid holding two trout, entitled "The Catch."

Archibald Barnes, R.C.A., Toronto, has four entrants. Among the best is a dignified representation of a lady in black, "Decorations" reveres all as a painter of flowers.

CALGARY ENTRY
Landscapes make a good showing. F. S. Coburn, R.C.A., Montreal, has "Winter Evening," a logging train in the snow with a dog tagging behind, distant hills, and a backdrop. His vari-colored covering to the redlining made in "Chinoiserie" stands high for color values.

A vigorously-handled subject is exhibited by A. C. Leighton, R.C.A., of Calgary. "On The Mountain," Canadian Rockies' depicting a mountain scene. Another similar subject "As Quincey Mountain" by Archibald Barnes, R.C.A., of Toronto—shows a bold touch in the cloud effect.

A striking exhibit, gathered in Canada's far north, comes from 1937.

U. S. FISHERIES CHIEF SILENT ON JAP INCURSION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Frank T. Bell, United States Fisheries commissioner, declined to comment on reports the Al-Alaska Labor Union had charged him and his Alaska agent, I. G. Wingard, with ignoring the American-Japanese salmon fishing controversy in British Bay.

Delegating Anthony Dimond of Alaska, likewise was silent concerning the Union's demand for a congressional investigation of the bureau of fisheries in Alaska. He said, however, "some progress" was being made by the state department in its efforts to "do everything in its power to work out a satisfactory solution of the dispute."

Dimond and Senator Lewis B. Swenerton of Washington commented that with department officials regarding the alleged "invasion" of the Alaskan salmon banks by Japanese.

Request Granted
MONTREAL, N.B., Nov. 20.—A baby who sought a night's lodging at the police station underwent a routine search. A piece of lead pipe was found in his possession, and was returned to his parents.

Montreal Tonnage Shows Big Increase
MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—Cargo tonnage handled through the port of Montreal this year will set a new record exceeding by 30,000 tons the 1936 mark. R. O. Campney, national harbor board chairman, said today. Tonnage handled last season amounted to 15,338,712, compared with 15,042,824 tons in mid-November. Mr. Campney said there was "definite assurance" the 1937 figure would establish an all-time record of more than 16,000,000 tons.

John P. Harris and Harry Davis opened the first "nickelodeon" in the United States at Pittsburgh in 1907.

IF IT WILL HELP ALBERTA THE EDMONTON BULLETIN IS FOR IT
SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 20

BON VOYAGE
Sir Herbert Wilkins and his companions have been very welcome in the province of Alberta because of what they have achieved and attempted in the past; because they are returning to scout the polar region; and because they will be awaited with eagerness, and it will be the joy of the province to have the pleasure of welcoming them again in a few weeks on their return from a successful tour.

ON A CASH BASIS
It is gratifying news that during the first half of the fiscal year the Government of the province lived within its means, and that there is a decrease in the net provincial debt of about three quarters of a million dollars.

Debt attention must be paid to the fact that this result has been attained by calculating bond-interest at the arbitrarily reduced rate, while no payments have been made into the sinking fund. Bond-holders do not accept the interest reduction question as closed, and passing such payments to the sinking fund would be considered with these deductions of outlay in mind.

But things being what they are, something to know that actual expenditure is not out-running cash receipts. Conditions in Alberta are not favorable than in other provinces. Crops failed over a considerable section, and business is below normal, but unemployment is still quite prevalent. In these circumstances the province was plunging farther into debt, the outlook would be anything but encouraging.

The cash record for the half-year does not guarantee there will be an equally good showing at the end. But it gives ground for hope that the year will close without the province going behind more than the amount of the deferred sinking fund payments, and any surplus will be used to pay eventually the interest on the amount of the interest money they claim to be still due them.

CALGARY'S NEW COUNCIL
Mayor Davison of Calgary has succeeded himself so often it has got to be a habit, and his successor on Wednesday night was duly presented before his constituents. He has already served eight years as chief magistrate, and as Mayor he has been in the office for five years.
He has completed a decade in the office by the time another election comes along.

The C.T.A. elected two candidates to the city council and two to the public school board. The organization, which corresponds to the Citizens' Committee in Edmonton, will have eight members in all. The candidates are being classified as Social Credit, Labor, one Independent one. While not achieving the hundred per cent vote desired, the C.T.A. in the corresponding organization in Edmonton, the C.T.A. will thus have as definite control over city policy.

Calgary does its electing by the Proportional Representation method. Analyzing the returns, the Alberta Press draws the conclusion that "89 per cent of the aldermanic vote elected four C.T.A. candidates, 32 per cent of the vote elected two Social Credit candidates, and 13 per cent of the vote elected one representative of Labor."
If the inference is correct, therefore, this must be accepted as an index of public opinion in Calgary.

The general inference is that, since the party having similar views in both cities, the Social Credit and Labor parties are in much the same frame of mind; a mental attitude suggesting a desire for stability rather than an impulse to radicalism.

ALL SERENE IN LONDON?
Candidates who visited the old lands in recent months have come back to tell the provin-cialists they do too much worrying about the possibility of war in Europe; much more about the general tone of their remarks. From the general tone of the subject of absorbing interest over the fact that the British Government is in the way only a matter of weeks.

Members of the parliament of Great Britain have an animated debate the other day on the question of whether the Government should make sufficient preparations for a speedy evacuation of London in case war should break suddenly and enemy airplanes start to drop bombs on the departmental offices. Some of the members were avowedly anxious that the Ministers stand ready to scatter themselves in all directions in the provinces at a moment's notice, as the Yanks of the Chinese Government are dispersing themselves in the event of a Japanese attack on Nanking.

They plainly think these representations of the British public were thinking of something quite different, and much less pleasant, than "The muddled out at the goal." It is reasonable to suppose a very substantial part of the population of British Canada is concerned in concerning about the same thing—the possibility of war coming upon them like the blast of a tornado.

Explaining government policy in London, the Canadian discoverers of overseas tranquility unearth the idea that uneasiness over the situation is more prevalent in Canada than it is in Britain. "Explain," they did their investigating mainly in the sitting rooms of tourist hotels, where managers naturally make it their special business that nothing shall disturb the equianimity of their guests and cause them to cut short their stay.

A THREE-WAY SHUFFLE
Great Britain and the United States are negotiating a reciprocal trade agreement. As a result of which, and to facilitate which, Canada and the United States are undertaking an overhaul and broadening of the agreement made by them
two years ago.

Britain hopes to get free access for its manufactured goods into the United States. The latter wishes to get, in return for this concession, free entry for its surplus farm products into the British market.

That is what brings Canada into the picture.
Free entry for United States farm products into Britain would mean a great advantage to Canada.
Canada now enjoys there under the preferential arrangement. Compensation for this loss of income in the way of free entry for Canadian products into the United States. Though to be accomplished by separate agreements, the general principle is that of mutual readjustment of existing trade arrangements.

The question arises, of course, as to why Canada should surrender any of the benefits it enjoys in the British market in order to facilitate the entry of United States products into that market. The reply is that Canada could in the last resort do without the British market, but little from Britain we could not very well object
if Britain went ahead and dealt with Washington.

Britain buys from Canada two and a half times as much as we buy from her. She buys from us only one-third as much. She exports to us as she sells to that country. That there should be a desire at London to bring trade more into parity with other countries is entirely understandable, and Canada is in no position to claim that Britain must sacrifice markets in the United States in order to reserve her own markets to herself.

The hope is that by a broadening of the reciprocal arrangement, Canada may get compensation in United States markets for what it may lose in the British market.

Twenty Years Ago
From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

The failure of the Central Bank has caused a sensational in Toronto.
The funeral of the Chicago anarchists took place on Sunday last and attracted an immense audience. No rioting occurred, but speeches of a violent character were made at the graves of Tupper and other Canadian representatives have gone to Washington to attend the fisheries bill.

The Slave Lake murderer has been safely lodged in the Manitoba penitentiary.
The Toronto police cleared the Trafalgar Square when the London police cleared the square of a demonstration called in protest against the government's Irish policy.

SURPLUS
There is certainly cheering news for Canadians in the world from Ottawa that the Dominion Government has a surplus of $33,372,600.
The present fiscal year a surplus of $33,372,600.
The controller of the treasury reports that from April 1 to October 31 receipts totalled $191,771, and disbursements $158,398,571. The surplus is marked contrast with last year, for at this date in 1926, states the report, the Dominion faced a deficit of $64,000,380.

GERMANY NEEDS PEACE
Chancellor Hitler's statement to the press
in Nuremberg sounds exceedingly like the truth.
He says, in effect, that the supreme need of Germany is peace. Only in a time of profound peace can a nation like Germany build up the "economic self-sufficiency" that is the proclaimed chief objective of her present policy.
Hitler estimates the time needed for this task
at from forty to fifty years.—Montreal Star.

WHY PICK ON CANADA?
The Chinese delegation to the international conference in Brussels shows a flag of reproach
at Canada for selling to Japan certain raw materials which presumably are used for carrying on war.

We frankly admit the charge.
It is indubitably true that our shipments of aluminum, lead and other metals to Japan were greater during the first nine months of 1927 than they were during all of 1926. Exports of lead and nickel especially have shown large increases.

On the other hand, shipments of zinc have materially decreased.
All this is true beyond question.

But why does the Chinese delegation pick on Canada? It is reproaching us for selling to Japan certain raw materials which presumably are used for carrying on war. What, for instance, is the source of the oil and gasoline that drove the airplanes whirring with the Japanese dropped showers of bombs on Shanghai?

About 64 per cent of that oil came from the United States. A good percentage of that gasoline came from Great Britain.

Why, then, is Canada singled out for the re-proaches of the gentlemen who met at Brussels?
The point is that it is not the goods of the Brussels conference are thinking of exports of Canada in these sales to Japan, they might as well know that not only Canada will not stand for it.

The United States, for all her sympathy with the Allies, sold munitions of war to the Central Powers right up to the minute of her declaration of war in 1918.

Are we expected to be different?
If it is going to be a general boycott of Japan to bring her to terms, Canada will play at it wholeheartedly.

If the other nations are going to sell to Japan, we will export everything we can—and no amount of suave hypocrisy will make us do otherwise.—Vancouver Sun.

DOWN THE SPILLWAY
By JOHN O'NEILL
With Christmas less than a month away I cannot but wonder that I am beginning to hear once again about the artistic greeting cards that are now to be had in place of the old-fashioned and sentimental Christmas cards.
I have seen and heard a good deal of these new places and times left for sentiment and trite and sentimental. I have seen and heard first among them. Two things that I abominate are Christmas trees decorated in the spirit of Buddhism and greeting cards that try to be clever or artistic.

I would not mind a card box decorated by a surrealist though it might seem inappropriate. I should not object to a card that said "Merry Christmas" every day of the year with the apocryphal verses of Noel Coward and Dorothy Parker instead of the dreary old-fashioned Christmas carols.
Aurelia, although I think it might add to the year's tedious. But the Christmas card that tries to be clever and artistic is the worst. It is the holly wreath, the brick fireplace, Santa Claus and the Colonial Coaching Scene, and substitute for the old-fashioned Christmas cards.

It is the Master in the name of good taste I regard as just what we wanted.

I haven't, of course, any real idea of how history will remember and judge Ramsay Mac-Donald. Saint Beuve wrote of himself "Before the first death of the century I had been my name, how many men have already died within me." Certainly Ramsay MacDonald, who had many careers, was many men and it is difficult to see how they ever could have been friends among themselves.

I once read parts of the speech that he made in the House of Commons just after Sir Edward Grey had committed suicide. I think I remember MacDonald was not only a "peace lover" then; he was a pacifist. And it seems that the words he spoke at that day still sound, even in his old age and after so many years of such very different words as much of truth and vision as any statement of our day has commanded. He said:

"The right honorable gentleman (Grey), to a House which in a great measure is with him, has delivered a speech the echoes of which will go down to history. The speech has been so impressive, however, that I must remit the conclusion to which he has come,
we have not been able to resist the moving character of his speech. I think he is wrong.
I think the Government he represents and for which he speaks is wrong. I think the verdict of history will be against him."

We shall see. I do not know, but I feel that the feeling of the House is against us. I have been through this battle with very different words part recompense. It will come again. We are going to go through it all. We will go through it all.

The "we" stood, of course, for those who opposed the war and continued to oppose it. It is ironic to think that although all he said was condemned by even the most liberal of the time, it was not until ten years later—in the form of the Premiership which was in truth the beginning of the end, Ramsay MacDonald was remembered MacDonald by the words I have quoted.

I am still trying to think of something more about those fifty-four alleged plotters against the Japanese government now on trial in Tokyo.
According to the news dispatches of yesterday:

Your Health

By DR. FRANK MCCOY
As you are often told in advertisements, an unpleasant breath is a social and business handicap. Certainly a breath of a disagreeable odor stretches the ties of friendship to the breaking point.

This voice should hesitate about offending others who we meet in either social or business way by an unpleasant breath, it is likewise important that we try to avoid this symptom while at home when near the other members of the family.

There is no very telling in how many cases a disagreeable breath odor has contributed to dissatisfaction in marriage. It is undoubtedly true that the one who is trying to retain the affection of the married partner would discover it a good investment to keep the breath clean and sweet at all times.

The patient with an unpleasant breath becomes so acutely conscious of the fact that he cannot, and unless some kind friend or relative tactfully suggests that halitosis is present, the patient will be entirely unaware that he is giving offense.

Foul breath has been publicized under the term "halitosis" and is not a disease but only a symptom. The cause may be in decaying teeth, in the presence of pus around the teeth as a result of a gum disorder, or it may be due to improper cleaning of the tongue with the food particles to remain and to undergo decomposition.

A simple test to find if the teeth are clean is to draw a thread between the teeth. Hold the thread close to the nose and if a disagreeable odor comes from the mouth, be sure that decomposing particles are present.

Sometimes the unpleasant breath odor is the result of diseased tonsils, or of nose and throat catarrh.

However, I believe that the most important single cause of this symptom is some kind of digestive tract derangement. When constipation exists at the same time, the breath may take on a more disagreeable odor. In such cases, the determining factor is the state of the bowels. It will only follow the correction of the abnormal condition of the stomach and colon. It is usually a chronic condition, and the patient must be taught how to have a cleansing and purifying effect, and after this, he should observe a strict dietary regimen to keep the digestive organs to return to normal running order.

During the fasting and dieting regimen, the patient should have the mouth put in a clean condition. A few weeks will also prove valuable in lessening the permanent breath odor.
There are a number of preparations on the market designed to neutralize the odor temporarily and until you have permanent relief from the tendency to halitosis, I suggest that you use one of them before joining a group of people.
If the odor is not relieved, it is a sign that you do and the precaution will take only a few minutes of your time.

Use of the mouth today and make sure that you are not offending others. If you find that halitosis has developed, then see your dentist if you cannot get relief. If the condition is a condition. If the trouble is the result of catarrh, then correct the catarrh; while if it is due to an intestinal and colonic derangement, a necessary attention to these conditions. A breath is an asset and one which you may possess, if you are only determined enough.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS QUESTION—Miss Thelma N. writes: "A week ago my mother had a severe cold, bleeding, lasting four hours. We had to call a doctor who finally stopped it by cauterizing the nose. Will you explain the purpose of this treatment and why it worked?"

ANSWER—When a patient undergoes severe and prolonged nose-bleeds, it is necessary to prevent a recurrence of the trouble by the use of the cautery. The purpose of the treatment is to destroy the blood vessels in the nose.
The treatment works because the newly formed scar tissue is firm and hard.

Commission Gives Findings After Probe of Three Years

VICTORIA, Nov. 20.—Reductions of 30 per cent or more in the cost of gasoline and coal in British Columbia consumers was recommended in the report of the Macdonald royal commission on coal and petroleum products and the cost to the consumer in relation to production and profits.

ATTACKS SYSTEM

The report termed the sale and distribution of gasoline wasteful and extravagant to "a marked degree," recommended the number of service stations throughout the province be drastically reduced and that selling of gasoline be conducted independently of the oil companies.

Even without these changes, the report continued, the price of gasoline in Vancouver is 30 per cent higher than in some other parts of the province.

With introduction of certain changes in the wholesale, retail and gasoline field, the report said, the cost of gasoline sold in Vancouver would be cut 30 per cent.

Coal will be cut to the general public for $4 a short ton, the report continued.

NO DIFFERENCE

In connection with advertising, the report found there was no substantial difference in the cost of gasoline sold under different names.

Gaming consumers in the province had been penalized for years by the high cost of the sale of heavy fuel oil, the report stated. Fuel sold in the province had been sold at a price in violation with domestic sales.

Turning to coal, the report suggested that the distribution of bulk and retail distribution districts, suggested by the report, be installed in the province of modern coal burning appliances.

ALBERTA COAL

Alberta coal has been duplicating the cost of coal in the U.S.A. for some time, the report said. The cost of coal in the U.S.A. is 30 per cent lower than in the province, the report said.

Discussing the freight rate situation, the report said that the freight rate from Drumheller to Vancouver is 74 cents per ton, while the freight rate from Drumheller to Kamloops is 44 cents per ton.

can hardly support life on their meagre salaries, their health endangered. The price of coal is so high that they are unable to change their location. These costly conditions are the result of the coal companies of Manitoba and Alberta, who are not interested in the welfare of the people and hindered by lack of public opinion.

The report also suggested that the government should take steps to carry out the duties of the coal companies, who are the highest in the land.

In addition to the teaching of overcrowding of the teaching profession and the carrying of district school boards forces them often to take to local buyers who may threaten them with dismissal. To those who have the courage to examine the facts, the situation is not a pretty one and is not worthy of the great country in which we live.

It is a pity that the coal companies are so concerned, the teaching profession is so small, and the coal companies do well to be so greatly concerned as to the future of the country.

It is reasonable to expect teachers, discouraged and robbed of hope for the future, to imagine that the coal companies are the only ones who are concerned, the teaching profession is so small, and the coal companies do well to be so greatly concerned as to the future of the country.

Widows Quickly Dissipate Death Money, Commons Is Informed

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The House of Commons yesterday rejected, by a vote of 205 to 141, a Labor bill which proposed to make important changes in the law in regard to widows' pensions.

The bill was introduced by Geoffrey Lloyd, under secretary of the home department, and was supported by a number of the strongest members of the government.

The bill was intended to provide for the payment of a lump sum of £100 to the widow of a man who had been killed in the service of the crown.

Manila Worst in Last Quarter Century

MANILA, Nov. 20.—Growing records of death and destruction today gave evidence Wednesday that typhoon was the most disastrous in the Philippines in 25 years.

The incomplete list of fatalities stood at 123. Many towns remained to be heard from and it was feared the total casualties would be materially more than that.

An incomplete survey of property damage placed the loss at $4,000,000.

The typhoon struck, which passed within 10 miles of the west coast of Luzon Island.

From that position meteorologists said it still might veer back across the Philippine Islands, but it was a typhoon which left 33 known dead.

Greatest loss of life was at sea where small boats were caught under severe westerly winds, passengers, sailors and fishermen drowned.

Is Mother Love just "Hokum?"

"Yes," say sophisticated Moderns, scoffing at "old-fashioned" idea of mothers' supreme sacrifices for their offspring

"No," says Science, proving through historical and biological findings that "Stella Dallas" story could easily happen in real life

Charles Darwin, the great evolutionist, first explained mother love in scientific terms.

FIREMAN saw his child, shrieked an agonized mother as she drops her precious babe into the net below and gratefully feels it will be swallowed up by the raging flames.

"There mothers are... good, old-fashioned mothers," the handsome young blade murmurs lazily to his fair partner, "but people don't do those things in real life. They are too theatrical. When you get right down to it," he continues in his best effusive manner, "they are contrary to the laws of self-preservation—you know, the laws of nature."

The gay young thing sighs profoundly and moves imperceptibly closer to her man. Why should she trouble to analyze the impulses of motherhood while she is still young and fancy-free? Time enough to worry about the mysteries of being a mother when the time comes. Besides, the young man beside her talks glibly of science and knows things out neatly.

But the young man's knowledge of science is somewhat lacking. If his best girl won't argue with him because she is much more intrigued by the way he does the rhumba than by the wise things he has to offer conversation, there are others who would take immediate umbrage to his casual remarks.

Naturally, millions of mothers from here to Zanzibar and back again would have plenty to say. His off-hand indictment that flesh-and-blood mothers wouldn't really sacrifice their lives for their progeny is provocative enough to bring his compact little world crashing about his ears.

First, of all, there is always Mr. Darwin to contend with. True, Darwin started the scientific world off by his solid complacency when he articulated his theories of self-preservation. But he seemed even more of a fanfare, when after years of research in the animal kingdom, he related that his findings proved that the problem of survival had to be approached from a new standpoint. The scientist concluded that instead of analyzing instincts merely in terms of the comfort it demanded in respect from the standpoint of animal behavior.

Of course in his glossary, the word "instinct" was taken as designating forms of behavior not acquired by an animal through experience and learning, but provided for congenitally in the animal's structure—so that he would be impelled to survive and to propagate.

Professor J. Arthur Thomson in his book, "The Wonder of Life," states that it is among birds and insects that we find the highest development of parental care.

Next-building among birds represents a climax of art on the one hand and of instinctive altruism on the other, he says. Brooding implies patience and courage during great suffering. "The bird has to do all this," he points out, "but the same may be said of much of the parental care which all the world admires in the human mother. It is instinctive. Among humans, of course, there is a fuller awareness of what it all means."

But in spite of this awareness, which has inevitably increased in modern times, style in motherhood shows very little variation and the love of the Nine Ages, thought, psychoanalysis, mother movements, new tempos and new gods have done nothing to alter the maternal instinct. It remains as vital and compelling today as did when the Cave Man dominated the scene—even if the casual man-about-town is too uninterested to give it a second thought.

Too busy with his chores and interests of the moment, he has probably never stopped to think, of the lady who is responsible for his entrance into the universe. He has never stopped to wonder about some of the things his mother did to give him his share of fun and frolic, to equip him mentally and physically for his battle with the world, to educate him properly so that he might encounter fewer odds.

He sailed through college, raving at football games, dancing divinely at frat dances and cutting a terrific swath on the campus sporting tips to the best tailor in town. It never occurred to him that his mother was once a cliche too—just like his heart interest of the moment. The news that his mother was once the belle of college proms, that she had swains aplenty, that she knew all about stolen kisses and moonlight walks probably come as a substantial shock.

Because mother love from the moment he was born crowded all the gayeties and pleasures into the background. And watching a mother go through the processes of life in relation to her offspring is a thing that is always taken for granted. Mother's love doesn't sound the least bit fashionable or sophisticated.

Yet it is so persistent, it is as sure as tomorrow. Furthermore, its guises are so strange and so many, that it is always packed with the dramatic and the unexpected, whether one examines it in one's own world or one peers into the animal world.

The legend goes that when Romulus and Remus, twin sons, were heartlessly placed in a trough by a hard-boiled grand-uncle and cast into the Tiber, a she-wolf refused to let them die of starvation. She took them and suckled them, and later when a baccher diet was required, a woodpecker brought them more substantial food. One may argue that this is only a parable of the fox, but it is fair payment for the pains of a lifetime. Perhaps that is especially true in the animal world where Nature's complex system causes many insects to die immediately after the offspring emerge from the eggs around which the mothers have placed a store of laboriously collected food. Nature, in other words, exploits the mothers so that the species may survive.

Witness Mother Otter, one of the denizens of the Bear Tribe. Man has done nearly everything imaginable to extinguish the otter—but it has survived because of its high degree of maternal care. The otter has one litter a year and the little animals are practically helpless and blind to boot.

What makes your mother other survive of sacrifice. And yet it is difficult to prove that mother love among the animals is anything through the wide of Africa, the frozen wastes of the North Pole, the impenetrable mountains of Tibet differs appreciably from that which surrounds a child as its birthright.

The youngster, clinging to its mother's apron strings, cries for its mother when danger approaches, associates its mother

A famous example of unreasoning mother instinct... the she wolf that nurtured Romulus and Remus.

Both in infancy and in young womanhood, Stella Dallas protects the daughter about whom her whole life revolves.

Another historic instance of mother love. The child's true mother begs Solomon to give her babe to another rather than sever it in twain.

psychological story, but it proves that the author of such a legend knew how compelling was the instinct of motherhood in a dumb animal.

Many, in fact, are the stories in literature which have dealt with this great human appeal. One does not forget the life of "Madame X" who gladly went through the tortures and sufferings of watching her child live with others and give them the love which was hers rightfully so that he would never know the agonies and horror of her life, for as Goethe once put it: "Her life is in her children... her crown is love."

And recently, Samuel Goldwyn, realizing the universality of the theme which makes heroines out of the lowliest creatures, selected the poignant and moving story of "Stella Dallas" for a picture that tells of the joys and heartbreak and triumph of a woman who found redemption through mother love. Starring Barbara Stanwyck and John Boie, it is based on one of the world's most widely read novels, and from advance reports it is a picture packed with thrills and drama galore.

"Stella Dallas" was born on the wrong side of the street; she goes through life's mill rather roughly because she does not share the refinements, she recklessly gives up a much better home than she cannot analyze it properly. She stumbles blindly along "mean street" because there is already and pleasure-bringing. But there is one thing she loves more deeply than anything else in the world, and that is her baby.

But when the realization dawns upon her that her world will ruin her child, there is a smile of triumph on her face, as she thinks out of her daughter's life.

so stringently sacrificial in her attitude toward her child? Call it anything you like—but surely it's blind instinct. But there it is, the hardly leaves the babe except to take it to the water. And don't think she doesn't give them an elaborate education. She teaches them the meaning of words, punishes foolishness, and shows them how to quest for food—especially trout and frogs.

But whether Nature is satisfying her biological impulses among the inarticulate species or among homo sapiens, the drama is always of fate. Of course while the instincts of motherhood, wealth and the rights of property modify differences. For whether a woman is a mother or whether she is doomed to a life in the slums, the stirrings, the yearnings, the sacrifices for her children are always the same.

On the other hand, they have little to expect from a young Queen who renounces them fiercely because she has none of her own. Until she is fertilized, she is stung to sting them. Thus may another's baby because she is the mother of a child to love and adore.

with its pleasurable experience such as eating, playing, sleeping etc. The child plays and the mother does and dreams of its youth the while it subsists on the milk of its female parent. The guidance and support received generally become a life-time bond.

Not in this state of affairs are different from the one which is enacted in a bee-hive. When it is time to swarm out of a hive, the Mother Queen follows her brood of children with an eagle eye. And they in turn are so dependent on her that they will continue to fly around, refusing to settle unless she is with them. If they lose her, they won't rest for a moment. At that time they may return to the hive and let themselves be led by a new young queen—but they'll be preoccupied all the same.

On the other hand, they have little to expect from a young Queen who renounces them fiercely because she has none of her own. Until she is fertilized, she is stung to sting them. Thus may another's baby because she is the mother of a child to love and adore.

When you go to the Zoo, you probably get the notion that an elephant is such a jumbo, so wouldn't know a thing about the care of children. But if you ever saw Mrs. Elephant nursing around like a baby-body to take her baby swimming or exercising on a jungle holiday, you'll realize that female elephants are pretty remarkable animals of the bird world who has given herself no slack when it comes to bringing up children in the most best of ways. And Mrs. Elephant and Mrs. Rook build the nurseries, but baby Rook is remarkably refuse to be fed by their fathers. "Mother, mother, mother, the infant rooks—as father brings home the bacon, but mother feeds him."

Whether psychologists and scientists will ever reveal their interpretations of an instinct which has motivated life from the very dawn, "Stella Dallas," shortly to be released by United Artists, dramatizes the life of a woman on "mean street" who made the supreme sacrifice so that her daughter's happiness would remain unclouded.

Directed by King Vidor, "Stella Dallas" features Anne Shirley and Tim Holt.

"Stella Dallas" Great Picture at Rialto

Barbara Stanwyck Scores Triumphant Success in Goldwyn's "Stella Dallas"

In New Film

Strong Cast Headed by John Boles Includes Anne Shirley, Alan Hale, Barbara O'Neil and Tim Holt

John Boles and Barbara Stanwyck in "Stella Dallas."

The Samuel Goldwyn production of "Stella Dallas," with Barbara Stanwyck in the title role, at the Rialto theatre beginning today, is a tense drama of a mother who sacrifices her own right to happiness for the sake of her daughter. It gives Miss Stanwyck the strongest role in her entire career and one which was coveted by every leading actress in Hollywood.

Associated with Miss Stanwyck is a distinguished supporting cast, including Anne Shirley, Alan Hale, Barbara O'Neil, Al Shean, of the famous team of Gallagher and Shean, and Tim Holt, son of Jack Holt.

"Stella Dallas" is without doubt the most poignant and gripping story ever to be filmed. It was originally a best-selling novel by Olive Higgins Prentiss, later a success on the Broadway stage and as a silent picture produced by Goldwyn 12 years ago, scored a sensational hit.

Barbara Stanwyck

I thought to attention such stars as Constance Bennett, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., who played his first adult role in the production, Lewis Moran and Alice Joyce, Ronald Colman, whose picture career had just started, looked to box-office promise, and Bella Bennett, in the characterization of the mother, was catapulted from obscurity into the star class by her performance.

In the new sound version Mr. Goldwyn has utilized every facility of his tremendous production resources in the creation of what is regarded as one of the more important pictures of the current season. Two film-makers, screen writers, Sarah Mason and Victor Fleming, produced the script, and the direction was in the hands of George Nichols, Jr., who made "Secret Seven" for Mr. Goldwyn, as well as a succession of other smash hits. "Stella Dallas" is released through United Artists.

At four she got a part with Pola Negri, then followed by a rapid economy while the constant search went on for additional work. The wisest youngster had been cast in a small, character role in the spring of 1924 when George Nichols, Jr., was preparing to make "Freaking School" and was casting his players when he recalled Anne from a bit she had done some time before. She "clicked" and in "Bachelor Bait," which followed, her screen personality began to take definite shape and lustre. "Anne of Green Gables" made her a star overnight.

The "Anne of Green Gables" was fully named "Anne Shirley." The young actress fell in love with the name, and made it legally hers. For three years now Anne has been much in demand and she reached the summit of her career in the timely emotional role of "Laurel," daughter of "Stella Dallas" in Samuel Goldwyn's superb drama of that name in which she shares featured honors with Barbara Stanwyck and John Boles.

He has already obtained contracts from several small theatre chains and expects to install the seats in more than 200 theatres before the year is out.

"The new seat," Hale explains, "is the first basic improvement in this type of structure in the past fifty years. Its most revolutionary feature is in that the occupant of a movie himself from four to six inches backward, thus clearing the aisle for other persons who wish to enter. The arm rests remain stationary."

Hale turns in one of his finest performances in "Stella Dallas," the United Artists release which stars Barbara Stanwyck and John Boles.

Alan Hale

In spite of Stella's valiant efforts to conceal her real reasons, Helen realizes that Stella is making a supreme sacrifice for her child. Helen, a mother herself, appreciates Stella's noble action in spite of her brains, stammering manner. She agrees to Stella's plan. At first Laurel is happy to be back on Long Island with her father and his new wife. But when she finds out the real reason, she thinks that she will soon return to her mother. But when Helen informs her that in the future she is to remain permanently with Laurel, she stubbornly rebels against the arrangement. And when Helen gently breaks the news that it is her own mother who has the girl, she realizes that Stella overheard the gossip on the train—the gossip which branded her a common woman.

POIGNANT DRAMA IN "STELLA DALLAS"

Realization that she is standing in the way of her daughter's happiness inspires Barbara Stanwyck to a magnificent sacrifice in this poignant scene with Anne Shirley in the Samuel Goldwyn production, "Stella Dallas."

The War Decided
John Boles' Career

A trick of fate changed the entire career of John Boles. From the time he was a little fellow, his parents were intent on making a doctor out of him. The war, curiously enough, was responsible for turning him into a singer.

The actor, who makes his latest appearance opposite Barbara Stanwyck in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "Stella Dallas," was born into a wealthy family in Greenville, Texas. John graduated from the University of Texas and was preparing to enter Johns Hopkins University for his medical course when America entered the war.

He decided that there were plenty of doctors as it was, and joined the army instead. On April 6, 1918, he landed in France with the A.E.F., and for 20 months worked with the criminal intelligence bureau of his unit in England and later in Italy. He was a Y.M.C.A. boy in a Harvard night John gave the boys a stirring rendition of "Roses of Picardy." To say that they liked it is putting it mildly; they were wild about it. They demanded more—and more. It was the young man's first experience before a large audience and the thrill of it kindled a new ambition.

Demobilization failed to reverse him from his resolve, and he informed his parents that he was through with medicine and was going to New York to seek his voice. First under Oscar Seagle in Manhattan and later, in a variety borrowed from his indulgent father, with Jean de Reszke in Pers. John's voice developed into a full, rich tenor. He returned to America. In his mind's eye he already saw his name in lights on Broadway. But such was not to be his lot for a while.

After waiting in countless casting offices and interviewing numerous producers, all of whom liked his voice but were dubious about sponsoring an unknown, Boles obtained an interview with the assistant of Lawrence Weber. The audition was a success. In "Little Jose James," a musical comedy bit of its days, he was a overnight sensation. His father and mother were no less pleased than he. "You are right," his father wired him, "and we were wrong. We're very happy for you." With Geraldine Farrar in "Romany Love Spell" and in "Mercenary Mary" and "Kitty's Kiss," John continued to score heavily.

Following the discovery of sound, Hollywood was grabbing as many stage players as it could get. Boles received an offer to appear in the screen version of "The Desert Song." Subsequently he appeared in scores of pictures, and gradually the complete transition from singer to dramatic actor took place, until he was in demand more in the latter capacity than the former.

History Repeats Itself

Samuel Goldwyn evidently believes that Hollywood history repeats itself for he signed Tim Holt, son of Jack Holt, for an important role in "Stella Dallas," with Barbara Stanwyck and John Boles in starring roles under King Vidor's direction. It was in the silent version of this screen classic that Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., son of another great screen star, first won acclaim.

Tim Holt, who made his major film debut in "Stella Dallas," was borrowed from Walter Wanger for the part. He is over six feet tall and almost as gifted a horseman and football player as his celebrated dad.

CHAPLIN'S PAL
King Vidor, who directed "Street Scene" for Samuel Goldwyn several years ago and wielded the megaphone on Goldwyn's smash drama, "Stella Dallas," is Charlie Chaplin's closest friend. They have been pals for many years.

Rustam Mametov and his wife, Sayat, of Armenia, are said to be the world's oldest married couple. Their ages are 140 and 116, respectively.

POOL ENVOY ON EXCHANGE BOARD ASKED

Proposal for Representation Made Before Turgeon Wheat Pool

OTTAWA, Nov. 20.—Representation of the wheat pools on the council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange was proposed by R. L. Brockington, counsel for the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association, before the council yesterday. Brockington, counsel for the pools, urged legislation to ensure the pools the right to pay "patronage dividends" without running foul of the exchange rules. Brockington's suggestion drew support from A. E. Darby, secretary of the exchange, who said the council would welcome the election of a representative of the pools to the governing body.

An old dispute between the federal government and the Saskatchewan government as to who should bear a loss of more than $100,000 occasioned by the purchase of grain for relief purposes in Saskatchewan by Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers Limited came before commission again.

Evidence was taken in western Canada on the matter and yesterday W. C. Hamilton, counsel for the Dominion government, called John I. McFarland, former chairman of the wheat board and former general manager of the co-operative, to give further details.

USED FACILITIES

Brockington said the western wheat pools might take a larger share of the internal government of the grain exchange. He asked Mr. Justice W. F. A. Turgeon, the commissioner, to direct his attention to the question as the pools were members of the exchange and used its facilities freely and consistently.

The pool developer, company, members of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association and the United Grain Growers competed with each other for the privilege of handling the farmers' grain. They rendered the same services and were allowed to make the same charges.

Sixteen widowers and nine men who had been divorced under 20 years old, were included in the last British census.

What's New On The ... RECORDS

BEING A REVIEW OF THE BEST NOW BEING TRANSCRIBED FOR GRAMOPHONES

—BY JOHN OLIVER.

Recent Victor Company record releases which have just come to hand continue the more substantial musical fare which characterized the previous month's contributions to the cause of good music and give additional indication of the arrival of the genuine musical season, when the heavier music is more appreciated and when, in the very rooms of the exchange and used in the studios, the music of the masters, played by the foremost orchestras and artists of the day, can be heard at will, according to one's mood.

From a musical and orchestral standpoint, the latest group of Victor releases includes a summary of Musorgsky's great opera "Boris Godunov" arranged and conducted by Leopold Stokowski with the Philadelphia Orchestra doing the playing.

This musical summary of the opera, is built upon the same general lines as the Wagnerian "Ring" cycles, which Stokowski conducted in previous releases. The interval elapsing between the issues of the Wagner works and this, is considerable and one had begun to give up hope of another such production.

Stokowski has constructed his summary on themes from the opera, in a manner which he himself describes as "something like a free modern symphony." In executing his theme, he uses the first of the two scores which of the opera which Musorgsky turned out, a version which was not produced for 40 years after it was composed.

Stokowski also has adhered to the dramatic sequence of the opera, but where he felt in his own wisdom, that Musorgsky's original orchestration was such as to only partially express his musical conception, Stokowski, to use his own words, has "helped the orchestra to say what I feel the composer is aiming to express." Whether Stokowski has improved upon Musorgsky to some extent is left to the province of this review.

But regardless of this, it is almost a platitude to say that Stokowski has made a fine job of it. To the musician, the study that he has obviously made of musical problems which he must have solved, and the unobtrusive manner in which he has achieved his end, will appreciate them for the sheer beauty of the sound results. Certainly, Stokowski has proved himself a shrewd master of the orchestra, as he has on the podium, and with many satisfying results.

To those who hear that act, there will be beauty in the way in which the various choirs are alternated, and are blended with timbre outstandingly distinguished that they sound almost on different planes. Stokowski achieves pianissimo that are just that and yet they retain the full body and quality of tone for which the mighty string section of this orchestra is justly noted.

It is said that people have risen and cheered on hearing this summary. And it is not surprising.

There is another Victor album in the latest releases that commands special mention. It is a series by the National Broadcasting Company string orchestra, conducted by Felix Slatkine for Strings, opus 424. In these numbers, record devotees are getting a group recorded for the first time, with the exception of the Arseny number which at one time was issued by H.M.V. as a string quartet—indistinctly, its origin form.

The Musorgsky number is unusually interesting by reason of it being the first work by this composer to be recorded, despite the fact that several of his symphonies have been played by the Philharmonia and the London Philharmonic orchestras. Those who take their music seriously might have read many fearful and serious criticisms of this composer, none of which appear to be substantiated by his music.

Based on this composition, one cannot realize how the composer would declare a dislike for Bach and Beethoven, as one commentator has said, "dislike" "tart" harmonies, but incisive as they are, they serve only to ingratiate the composer and ingratiate rhythms.

Arseny variations on Tchaikovsky's theme are even more melodious and graceful.

Frank Black treats all the numbers with the good taste for which he is famous. A brilliant pianist in an orchestra, Black became one of the leading orchestral conductors of dance and concert music in the U.S. Then he moved upward to his post of general musical director of the New York City Symphony Orchestra. He is generally regarded a millionaire and is said to have received as much as $300,000 for orchestral work. He has proved himself well worthy of his well won honors and that his series has been a real triumph for the fine conductor that many air hearers have demonstrated.

Laura Tordella makes her appearance as a result of the continued efforts of Julia Maria, soprano, pianist and the Boston "Pop" orchestra, directed by Arthur Fiedler. This latest work calls for an unfailing imagination if the composer's intention are to be realized and for strong, determined fingers. The artist is well equipped in so far as his technical facility is concerned, and it is a debatable point whether his imagination is extensive enough to meet the case. In the result, there is a gliding, glittering cascade of sparkling notes, but an absence of genuine melody.

Benjamin Gigli, Metropolitan tenor, has recorded two songs from his film, "Forget-Me-Not," which played at the Rialto theatre here last winter. Both are sweetly flowing with melody and show off the brilliant voice of the singer in fine style.

Just Bjorling, Nordic tenor, gives a most effective rendition of two favorite tenor operatic arias. Recordists Armonia from Puccini's "Tosca" and Le Donni and Moliere from Verdi's "Rigoletto." Although there is a forcing of some of the higher notes, the general effect is admirable.

Joe Turbi, noted pianist is heard in "Alberca's Corridors." These and many others go to make up as fine a group of records as the Victor Company has issued in a long time and each and every one is well worth hearing.

In addition, there are many light numbers, salon music and the perennial favorites, while there is also a goodly sprinkling of dance records.

As for the question of cruelty in such an operation, however, what strikes me as significant is the fact that a man cannot so mutilate in order to overcome the effects of his own inability to impose his will upon a creature which is by nature only too anxious to learn and to please. Such a situation seems to me to put the dog in a far less light than his owner's. I do not mean for a moment to place a child and a dog in the same category, but what I would like to point out is that a parent who allowed his child to grow up in a petulant and rude, and then when such behavior had become a habit, had recourse to an operation to deprive the youngster of the ability for further inclination.

To permit a dog to become a petulant barker is stupid and unnecessary, and anyone who does so should never own a dog. Get a pup and let it grow up with the idea that it can have as much as it wants of food, shelter or anything else, and you, too, may come to find yourself in a position where you must shut the dog or your puppy out of your house for a time. Should that come, don't blame the pup, the man in charge should be blamed and the penalty yourself.

Mr. Goodsell will be glad to answer letters about dogs, exclusive of any animal, including dogs, of course, that bark, howl, or howl after to others at night. Let us see, isn't it that fair city which carries on its books a law prohibiting

Austrian Monarchists Jailed For Demonstrating

MOVEMENT FOR NOT GROWING SAYS LEADER

Police Declare They Were Held to Avoid Nazi Collision

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—Sixty Monarchists who wanted "Kaiser Otto" back to Austria to establish the Hapsburg regime were arrested early today by a police riot squad.

The demonstrators, observing the 21st birthday of Archduke Otto, tried to parade at midnight through Vienna's shopping street, Karmnerstrasse, singing songs of loyalty to the house of Hapsburg.

Police, who knew groups of Nazis had gathered in quiet streets surrounding the Monarchists, and took leaders into custody to avoid a collision.

The police said they did not know how many of the demonstrators would be arrested, but indicated the charge would be "making unreasonably use of force."

Several minor counter-demonstrations by Nazis were broken up by police.

Before the opening of a Monarchist rally which preceded the parade, a score of tear gas was discharged in the courtyard of Vienna's great Concert Hall.

OTTO ARCHDUCHE
Otto, successor to the non-existent Austrian throne, was absent from his castle of Steierreich.

Police also discovered a volatile liquid in the Concert Hall building. It was turned over to the police for analysis. Guards were alerted about the hall to prevent any attack.

Baron Friedrich von Wiesner, leader of the Austrian Monarchist party, prior to the meeting said he was informed Otto was in Vienna. He added he was confident the Archduke would be at Steierreich.

In an address prepared for delivery at the rally, von Wiesner said 1,210,000 souls belonged to the Austrian Monarchist movement.

WANT MONARCHY
He said the present program envisioned establishment of a monarchy in Austria to maintain the Austrian independence.

Observers of the young pretender's birthday get a new high in laudatory propaganda. Observers were divided, however, on the political program being made to restore monarchy.

OBSTACLES GONE
Both Chancellor von Schuschnigg of Austria and Premier Koloman von Staritz of Austria said their movement was of no immediate concern.

Virtually all legal obstacles to Otto's return have been removed, but he has not yet set foot on Austrian soil since the exile of his father, the Emperor Charles, after the great war.

Then And Now!

By Nellie McClung

BLACK JACK REGAN was the horrible example of the Silver Star who is confirmed as a regular drunkard. Many a good temperance talk ended with the piercing question, "How would you like to grow up to be a drunkard like Black Jack Regan?" and that usually caused the youthful listener to shudder and enroll in the band of teetotalers.

Black Jack was an unrepentant drunkard too, and was pleasantly aware of the feeling of the neighborhood to his weekly outburst. "When I get drunk, everyone knows it," he often said in a bit boastfully. "I'm not one of those fellows that just get warmed a bit. I drink my fill and don't care who knows it." There was no doubt about it being known. Everyone knew it, except Granny Regan, who was stone dead, and even she said she felt the house vibrate with the beat of Regan's heels!

His program for Saturday night was simple. He rode the three mills and then got a share at the harbor shop, bought his week's supply of cheap cigars at the store, went to the mall visited a week of the lively stable, and then went to the bar of the Regan House, asked everyone there to drink with him and signified his willingness to accept similar hospitality without prejudice.

At that time there was no oppressive or hampering closing laws; Matthew Regan, the proprietor, being the judge and enforcer of order. The house was broken up by police.

Before the opening of a Monarchist rally which preceded the parade, a score of tear gas was discharged in the courtyard of Vienna's great Concert Hall.

Ethiopia's (Ex-?) King Must Go "On Relief"

Small Personal Treasure Is Exhausted

By MILTON BROWNER

LONDON, Nov. 20.—Haile Selassie the First, King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of Judah, a frail little shadow king, thin and dark—has permitted his friends in England to reveal that his supposed treasure box, transported from Ethiopia, is empty.

He stands out as the most notable victim of the League of Nations and the big powers which control and way it. Encouraged by the league to resist the war of aggression waged upon his country by Italy, he has lost everything save his life. All his money—little but day sound delivery: "King of Kings of Ethiopia, Conquering Lion of Judah"—a frail little shadow king, thin and dark—has permitted his friends in England to reveal that his supposed treasure box, transported from Ethiopia, is empty.

Today he lives far from his native land, in the distant watering place of Bath, simply, modestly as befits one of fortune. At the time he left his country much was made in the reports concerning the vast treasure he was supposed to have carried off with him. It is revealed in a new way that he has no money left. He has long ago been spent in his efforts to maintain his position as representative in the League of Nations Assembly, and for years for lawyers looking after his interests.

FINANCIAL FRUSTRATION

In the desperate attempt to help himself, the poor little Emperor has been blocked at every turn. He has been to write his memoirs. There was a London publisher who wanted to take the book. There was in England and elsewhere a sympathetic audience ready to buy it. But when he had completed it, he was doomed to disappointment. The manuscript was sent back to him. Inexpensive, it was the sort of bookmaking Haile Selassie had spent too much time in writing for the Emperor. He had given all too little space to the trade war with Italy—the inside story as only he could reveal. But when he had completed it, he was doomed to disappointment. The manuscript was sent back to him. Inexpensive, it was the sort of bookmaking Haile Selassie had spent too much time in writing for the Emperor. He had given all too little space to the trade war with Italy—the inside story as only he could reveal.

Haile Selassie, looking out of a window above in London, but not only his kingdom but his personal fortune when Italy wrested Ethiopia from him, is now revealed. A "relief" fund may be raised to aid him.

In the same courts he sought to Ethiopia, he might use the company for the money, claiming Haile Selassie had no right of it. The English court is lumbering over the point. So straitened have the circumstances of Haile Selassie now become that, as soon as they think the moment propitious, the Abyssinians and tried out against the going to issue an appeal for a relief fund for him. This association has among its directors a number of prominent members of Parliament.

The little King's attorney made great play of the fact that he was still recognized as Emperor of Ethiopia by the British government. The wireless people said the truth was that as the King of Italy now claimed to be the Emperor of Ethiopia.

U.S. Envoy's Trip Leads To Protest

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—Senator Vandenberg, (R, Mich.) and Senator Lewis (D, Ill.) joined yesterday in asking an investigation of a report that William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to France, had been sent to Poland to "warn" that country against participating in the Italian-German Japanese anti-Communist plot.

Vandenberg interrupted the anti-Communist filibuster on the senate floor to read a newspaper dispatch from Paris which said Bullitt had gone to Poland for that purpose.

C. F. JAMIESON, JOURNALIST, LAWYER, DEAD

CALGARY, Nov. 20.—C. F. Jamieson, well-known journalist and lawyer, died here yesterday following an illness of several months. He was a native of Nova Scotia and graduated from Dalhousie law school.

He formerly was editor of the Yarmouth Herald and after he came west, of the Medford Daily Times. He was admitted to the Alberta bar in 1917, and after that continued his newspaper activities in the writing of occasional articles and columns.

Fascist Move In Quebec Charged

ST. HYACINTHE, Nov. 20.—A "definite" Fascist movement exists in Quebec province, Mayor D. Bouchard, 85, of St. Hyacinthe, asserted in an address here yesterday.

Members of the "lost movement," he said, "have military equipment and are in preparation for the complete overthrow of the government of the province by force of arms."

U. S. Government Gold For Another Ship

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Hugh Lee, shipmaster, has just been reported to be $10,000,000 worth, is being sent to France. It was disclosed here yesterday.

This shipment, together with two earlier gold exports totaling about $10,000,000 announced this morning, constituted the big eastward movement of gold since 1934.

SEA LAW OF B.C., ENGLAND, EAST CLASH

Special Jury Has Had Problem in C.N.R. Steamship Appeal

MONTREAL, Nov. 20.—Conflict between the laws of England, Quebec and British Columbia is involved in an appeal by Canadian National Steamships Co., Limited, against a Superior court judgment awarding $400,000 damages to Alfred Watson, ship's carpenter, injured aboard the steamship Corwallis in heavy seas 100 miles off Bermuda two years ago. Argument started before a special jury yesterday.

A Superior court jury under Chief Justice R. A. McKeown held the company responsible for the accident because the ship's chief officer had not ordered life lines erected before Watson was sent on deck.

ASKEW SAID FOR $300,000, claiming a large wave crashed over the ship and swept him against a bulkhead, leaving him 90 per cent incapacitated.

The company claims the jury's finding of blame was not justified by the evidence and that the law of British Columbia and the law of England applied to the case, not the law of Quebec. British Columbia law became involved because the ship was registered in Vancouver.

Counsel for Watson contends since B.C. law was neither applied nor proved it must be deemed to be similar to that of Quebec. The company's attorney said that on a British ship, the high seas, governing British law should apply.

Earl To Represent King In Australia

LONDON, Nov. 20.—The Dominion office announced today Earl De La Warr, lord privy seal, will represent the government at Sydney on the occasion of the 15th anniversary of the first settlement of Australia.

The anniversary falls on January 26, 1788, and three months of consecutive celebrations in New South Wales have been arranged.

Mexican Plot Is "Old Wives' Tale"

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 20.—The attorney general's office today described as an "old wives' tale" reports of a plot to assassinate President Lázaro Cárdenas.

Twenty-eight detained Thursday in connection with the alleged plot was released.

Salvationists Assist Jobless

The annual report of the Salvation Army social services in Edmonton has just been released by Major E. T. Waterson, the district commander. This report shows a record of unusual service in the interests of the unfortunate of Edmonton and district from the following is taken:

Stranded men given new start in 110; 773; beds supplied to homeless men, 3,811; free beds supplied, 1,375; meals supplied to homeless men, 40,240; free meals supplied, 2,186; persons assisted with fares, 28; persons assisted with clothing, 640; garments given free to needy persons, 2,487; persons supplied with free furniture, 74; temporary jobs found, 12; permanent jobs found, 12; visits paid, 186; visits to police court, 321; prisoners spoken for, 97; prisoners given to care of Salvation Army, 56; interviews at police court, 218; interviews at jail, 220; prisoners sent on discharge, 100; prisoners given to parents or friends, 82; prisoners given to employment, 62; letters written for prisoners, 18; phone calls for prisoners, 10; number of prisoners assisted, 187; periodicals given to prisoners, 20; hours spent in prison work, 1,148.

In connection with the work carried on at the women's home, 121; women have been admitted, 103; nights' lodging given free, 1,058; meals given free, 12; visits paid, 186; visits to police court, 321; prisoners spoken for, 97; prisoners given to care of Salvation Army, 56; interviews at police court, 218; interviews at jail, 220; prisoners sent on discharge, 100; prisoners given to parents or friends, 82; prisoners given to employment, 62; letters written for prisoners, 18; phone calls for prisoners, 10; number of prisoners assisted, 187; periodicals given to prisoners, 20; hours spent in prison work, 1,148.

Major Waterson stated that one of his biggest problems is the supplying of warm clothing to the jobless to needy families especially since the weather has arrived in earnest. In a letter received this week a woman writes: "I am a cripple, having lost one leg just above the knee, we have eight children, have no money, no relief, one child is subject to epileptic fits and can assume no responsibility. My husband has been earning $1.00 per day until a few days ago he broke his right arm. We have no tools to cut wood so must break all our fuel by hand. We are in urgent need of bedding and clothing to enable the children to go to school. I am in desperate case and the Salvation Army would be a great help as well as many other similar cases."

Knox Church Celebrates

Next Sunday, November 21, is a memorable day in the history of the South Side, marking as it does the anniversary of the founding of Knox United Church—the opening of the Presbyterian mission in an unfinished hotel apartment in the fall of 1891, the same year in which the Calgary and Edmonton railways reached the south bank of the old Grande where the hotel and railway station were constructed. All denominations attended the service in the first mission building in 1907.

The present Knox United Church opened by Dr. David of Winnipeg in 1907.

Sunday's services will mark 30 years of progressive blessings. Dr. James Mackenzie, a distinguished worship minister who comes from Knox church, Saskatoon, will be the anniversary preacher.

Special church music will be rendered by the church choir under the leadership of W. M. Weaver. On Monday, Nov. 22, there will be a brief concert and an address by Dr. Mackenzie on "Auld Lang Syne." Singers and former Knox members and friends are heartily invited to attend and enjoy the week-end celebrations.

In connection with the work carried on at the women's home, 121; women have been admitted, 103; nights' lodging given free, 1,058; meals given free, 12; visits paid, 186; visits to police court, 321; prisoners spoken for, 97; prisoners given to care of Salvation Army, 56; interviews at police court, 218; interviews at jail, 220; prisoners sent on discharge, 100; prisoners given to parents or friends, 82; prisoners given to employment, 62; letters written for prisoners, 18; phone calls for prisoners, 10; number of prisoners assisted, 187; periodicals given to prisoners, 20; hours spent in prison work, 1,148.

Major Waterson stated that one of his biggest problems is the supplying of warm clothing to the jobless to needy families especially since the weather has arrived in earnest. In a letter received this week a woman writes: "I am a cripple, having lost one leg just above the knee, we have eight children, have no money, no relief, one child is subject to epileptic fits and can assume no responsibility. My husband has been earning $1.00 per day until a few days ago he broke his right arm. We have no tools to cut wood so must break all our fuel by hand. We are in urgent need of bedding and clothing to enable the children to go to school. I am in desperate case and the Salvation Army would be a great help as well as many other similar cases."

J. Percy Tack, manager and coach of the world champion Edmonton Grads, said yesterday morning that the return of the team to the Coliseum after a lapse of four years, by holding the women's basketball team to four New York Rovers to a 14 tie last night in an Eastern United States Amateur league game.

Walter Rimstad of Edmonton, who the Rovers in front halfway through the first period while converted "Tack's" Demarcus, Page stated, adding the tour of New Zealand would be more likely if there were no Olympic games at the extended time would necessitate longer leave of absence.

Another objection to the different type of game was played in New Zealand and unless some "common ground" could be arranged for games, the tour might not be made, he said. Page added he had received a letter from the New Zealand Basketball association asking for a copy of the Canadian rule book.

That every effort is being made to arrange the tour, the fastest coach concluded.

Henry Armstrong Kayoes Billy Beauhuld In Fifth

Clever Los Angeles Negro Continues Furious Pace

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—Armstrong recently crowned world's featherweight champion, continued his furious pace through the last night by knocking out Billy Beauhuld, crack Jersey City lightweight, in the fifth round of their 10-round fight before 1,000 customers in Madison Square Garden. Armstrong weighed 122½ and Beauhuld 114½.

A crack-knave but whipped Beauhuld, fighter underdog in 44 professional fights, was on the floor from a murderous right to the jaw when the bell entered the fifth. Referee Arthur Donovan hastily counted Dr. William A. Walker, examining physician for the New York state athletic commission, and stopped the bout. Beauhuld was bleeding badly from cuts on the nose and forehead.

It was a rousing battle and kept the crowd in an uproar from the first punch on. Beauhuld protested vigorously when Donovan stopped the fight and so did his taunters, but there never was any doubt in the minds of the crowd as to who would be the ultimate winner.

The knockout was Armstrong's third of his 21 fights. He has charged out of the west a year ago, the only man to play the limit with the twofold little Negro was Lido Spidili, the Italian. Armstrong's victory was a surprise surge through the past a few weeks ago by knocking out Billy Beauhuld of Birmingham, Ala. He will undoubtedly pass possession of the world's featherweight title.

PRONE upon the mat, spread-eagled and as cold as any mother-in-law's heart could be, Referee Emil Van Velzen took the count last night at the Memorial Hall in the main event of Promoter Mike Cutcher's wrestling card. Referee Van Velzen fell victim to Al Christophol's wrath after the quarrelsome Greek had been disqualified, losing the feature go to Mountain Hermit.

On and off the spot, first abused by the fans for not being tough enough, and then rebuffed with blows from the rangle rages before he was too late to Van Velzen a dog's life, and not turning one of these pedigre dogs that lie on cushions and get combed twice a day, either.

But despite being a rose among many thorns, Van Velzen had his happy moments. First he just meandered about the ring as Lawrence Jacobson was one-doll fight against Mickey Martin of Calgary. Then he stepped up to blistering action as he tried to keep order between Maurice DeBleick and Speedy Frank's former, winning a knockout just as Franks was disqualified. Then there was another fall in the storm as Hans Schuman outmanned Duke Ruppenstul in the second semi-final.

"SACRED ANIMALS"

AS FAR BACK AS HISTORY IS RECORDED, MAN HAS WORSHIPPED CERTAIN OF THE LOWER ANIMALS. MANY OF THESE CREATURES WERE BELIEVED TO BE THE EARTHLY REPRESENTATIVE OF VARIOUS GODS.

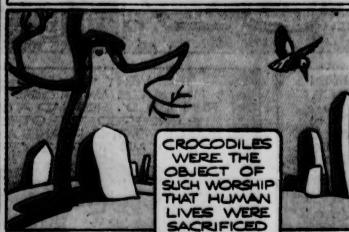

THE EGYPTIANS WERE RICH IN SACRED ANIMALS! THE IBIS, A BIRD OF THE STORK FAMILY, WAS ASSOCIATED WITH THE MOON/ IT WAS SUPPOSED TO SAVE THE LAND EACH YEAR FROM INVASIONS OF WINGED SNAKES.

THE EGYPTIAN CAT WAS BELIEVED TO BE THE INCARNATION OF BAST, THE SUN GODDESS/ DEATH WAS THE PENALTY FOR ANYONE WHO KILLED A CAT.

THE MAORIS, OF NEW ZEALAND, CONNECTED A KINGFISHER OF THEIR COUNTRY WITH THE DEAD, BECAUSE IT FREQUENTED BURIAL GROUNDS.

CROCODILES WERE THE OBJECT OF SUCH WORSHIP THAT HUMAN LIVES WERE SACRIFICED TO THEM.

THE BAT WAS WORSHIPPED BY ANCIENT MEXICANS, AS A GOD OF THE UNDER-WORLD.

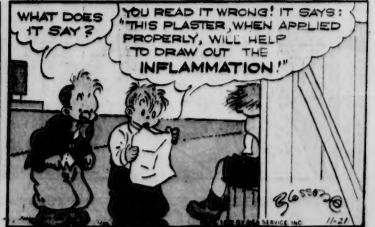

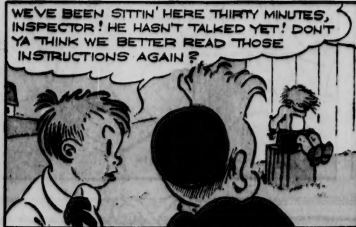

IN INDIA, WHITE COBRAS ARE WORSHIPPED IN SPECIAL TEMPLES.

EVEN TODAY, IN GREAT CITIES OF INDIA, STREETS ARE CLUTTERED UP WITH SACRED HUMPED CATTLE/ PEDESTRIANS STEP ASIDE TO LET THEM PASS.
